Transfer of rights:

I assure that I am entitled to dispose of the copyright rights of use to my work and that I have not yet made any contrary dispositions. I declare that the publication of the work does not violate any rights of third parties and indemnify the Technical University of Darmstadt from any claims by third parties.

I hereby grant the Technische Universität Darmstadt the following rights regarding the publication-approved version of the doctoral thesis:

- to store and reproduce it in electronic form for an unlimited length of time and irrevocably on their own servers and make it accessible to interested parties via the international data networks;
- to forward it to the German National Library as well as to partner library institutions which also have the right to store it for an unlimited length of time;
- to produce single copies of the entire thesis using print-on-demand services for users, to be used in compliance with §53 UrhG [Urheberrechtsgesetz – German copyright law];
- to migrate it to other formats should this be required for use or archiving;
- to forward the metadata* of the doctoral thesis for inclusion in databases or directories.

* Metadata refers to the bibliographic information (author, title, assessor, faculty, etc.) and the abstract.

The publication takes place under the following license:

Examples for creative commons licenses can be found at <https://creativecommons.org/share-your-work/ccllicenses/>

Example (recommended): Published under CC BY 4.0 International

The above-mentioned granting of rights to TU Darmstadt does not apply if a publisher's publication in printed form within the prescribed period is proven. If the deadline for submission is not met, ULB will publish the copy uploaded to TU prints in order to prevent the doctorate from failing (§ 20 para. 4 and 7 PO/AT).
